NOTE: Permission to examine, photocopy or photographically reproduce material from the Library's collections does not constitute or imply permission to publish that material. To the extent that it may do so, the Library will grant publication rights to qualified applicants. Permission to publish items from the Garden's collections will ordinarily be granted for one time use upon written application and payment of publication use fees.

These fees are for reproduction rights and are for one-time use only, as stipulated in the Agreement on Reproduction Rights form. Publication use fees are payable at the time of billing. All negatives, slides, transparencies, and digital images made of Library materials are the property of The New York Botanical Garden and must be returned to the Library in a timely manner.
