The New York Botanical Garden's
Calendar of Exhibitions and Grand Openings
2010/2011

The New York Botanical Garden is a museum of plants dedicated to achieving excellence in horticulture, education, and plant research and conservation. A National Historic Landmark site, the Garden is open year-round and features exhibitions and events in every season throughout its 250 acres and 50 gardens and plant collections.

Over the past two decades, the Garden has experienced a renaissance across its landscape with restored gardens and historic buildings, enriched programs and offerings, and new facilities and amenities. In September 2010, the Garden dedicated the Lillian and Amy Goldman Stone Mill, an 1840 landmark building restored to its pre-Civil War elegance. The Stone Mill is the centerpiece of the 100-acre Historic Stone Mill Precinct. The Garden's remarkable renewal continues in 2011 with the opening of the new Azalea Garden and the ongoing restoration of the 50-acre Native Forest.

Rave reviews abound:

According to The Wall Street Journal, the Botanical Garden "is always a magical place."

"The Garden works that timeless ancient magic: we begin to see things whole."
—Edward Rothstein, The New York Times
