NYBG's 26th Annual Holiday Train Show[®] Showcases Iconic Skyscrapers and Architectural Wonders of Midtown Manhattan

November 22, 2017–January 15, 2018

Midtown Manhattan vignette in this year's Holiday Train Show

Bronx, NY—The New York Botanical Garden's Holiday Train Show[®] showcases Midtown Manhattan in the 26th year of this beloved tradition. New replicas of the Empire State Building, Chrysler Building, General Electric Building, and St. Bartholomew's Church from this celebrated district join NYBG's collection of more than 150 New York buildings and landmarks made out of plant parts and enlivened by large-scale model trains. Other visitor favorites include the Brooklyn Bridge, Statue of Liberty, Grand Central Terminal, and the original Yankee Stadium. The Holiday Train Show opens to the public on Wednesday, November 22, 2017 and runs through Monday, January 15, 2018.

St. Bartholomew's Church is located on Park Avenue, between 50th and 51st Streets. Often referred to as St. Bart's, the Byzantine Revival structure is made of limestone and pink brick. A massive tiled dome, intricate stained-glass windows, and three sets of bronze doors designed by famous Gilded Age architect Stanford White are other architectural details that inspire its Holiday Train Show replica.

The General Electric Building, adjacent to St. Bartholomew's on Lexington Avenue, features elaborate Art Deco ornamentation depicting lightning bolts. The crown of the building's octagonal tower is lit from within each night.

New renditions of the Empire State Building—now with changing internal lighting schemes—and the Chrysler Building make their debut this year, adding wonder to the Midtown Manhattan tableau. The Art Deco details of their façades, spires, and the Chrysler Building's iconic sunburst crown are sure to be accentuated in the respective new replicas that will be on display in the Reflecting Pool under the 90-ft.-high glass dome of the Palms of the World Gallery, alongside the Ed Koch Queensboro Bridge.

In the Holiday Train Show, more than 25 G-scale model trains and trolleys hum along nearly a half-mile of track past re-creations of iconic sites from all five boroughs of New York City, the Hudson River Valley, and other locations in New York State. Artistically crafted by Paul Busse's team at Applied Imagination, all of the New York landmarks are made of natural materials such as bark, twigs, stems, fruit, seeds, and pine cones. American steam engines, streetcars from the late 1800s, and modern freight and passenger trains ride underneath overhead trestles, through tunnels, and across rustic bridges and past waterfalls that cascade into flowing creeks. Thomas the Tank Engine[™] and other beloved trains disguised as large colorful insects delight children as they zoom by.
